Day of Dullness and Unimportant Changes in the New York Stock Market-Locals Steady WILL RENEW FIGHT

NO SPECIAL ACTIVITY IN STOCKS, EGGS ARE LOWEST BUT PRICES GENERALLY A LITTLE HIGHER.

NEW YORK, March 6 -- Close -- There | TODAY'S PRICES ON was just about the same volume of business in the short two hours of business as on the morning session of vesterday. Communication with the outside world by wire is still of the perhaps and maybe order, a wire every filteen minutes to the South, and occasionally to the West. As a result the market was again without its quota of outside orders, and the volume of local commissions was decidedly light.

As a rule the range of prices showed a little firmer tone, but the changes were entirely inconsequential as a rule. haps and maybe order, a wire every fifwere entirely inconsequential as a rule, but Denver and Rio Grande, Interborough-Metropolitan, and a few other stocks slight advances were scored, while Railway Springs set the pace the other way, breaking from 38½ to 37½ as compared with a close at 39 yesterday, and considerably above 40 a few days back. The passing of the dividends and poor earnings was the cause of this decline, the most marked movement of the entire day.

Steady Market Expected.

Any advance to amount to anything would develop the fact that there were stocks to sell on the bulge indeed, this is perhaps the plainest outlook at this time. Any material recession would meet some buying orders and be checked, although it is likely that lower levels will be established gradually. No one looks for a good active market in stocks so long as there is any demoralization in the steel trade; ng also, as the tariff conditions are increase in production for February of 630,000 tons was reported over February of 1906, and March will probably show larger increase.

The labor outlook is unsettled. Reduction of wages by the Lackawanna Steel Company is indicative of what may be expected elsewhere. Commenting on the situation, Dr. Henry Clews says:

Dr. Clews' Views.

"The stock market has been more or less neglected owing to the absence of many large operators, to uncertainty concerning tariff, and to the interest attached to a change of Administration. A better undertone is observable, es-A better undertone is observable, especially for desirable securities since the reaction of the past two or three weeks. There is more confidence in values, and considerable amounts of high grade bonds and stocks have been withdrawn from the marker by permanent investors. Speculation is, of course, restrained by the duliness in grade and the reactionary tendencies. course, restrained by the dullness in trade and the reactionary tendencies in some of the commodity markets. A drop in steel exercised a temporarily depressing effect, and the demoralized condition of the copper market does likewise. It is recognized, however, that these declines pave the way for a resumption of husiness under health. a resumption of business under health-ier conditions, and however unwelcome these changes may be to sellers they are generally recognized as remedial in their effect. Money is easier and this should encourage resumption of business. The outlook for the market is rather hopeful than otherwise, and there is little prospect of any serious break in the absence of unfavorable ness for the defense, under arrest today for perfury in the Cooper-Carmack trial, and the testimony of some of the most important witnesses for the defense apparently impeached by the witnesses for the State, public sentiment again has swung away from the defendants, temporarily at least. Two witnesses, Miss Daisy Lee, stenographer employed in the office of Judge Bradford, and Mrs. Emily Blake, stenographer employed near the Bradford offices and who was present during part of the conference there on made statements that put November 9, made statements that put the Coopers in the light of having taken up a position on Seventh avenue with the deliberate intention of lying in wait for former Senator Carmack.

Their testimony was to the effect that the statements of Judge Bradford, Colonel Cooper, Robin Cooper, General Brown, and Governor Patterson, that after Colonel Cooper had left the Bradford offices on the afternoon of November 9 and had been recalled to answer a telephone call from Governor Patterson, were not true. Both witnesses insisted that Colonel Cooper was not called back to answer such a call.

It had been the contention of the defense that the Coopers was a called to a called back to answer such a call.

The sliding scale of prices and dividends will doubtless be made an important feature of any legislation. The nterstate Commerce Commission, District Commissioners, or some other body to be named by law probably will be endowed with authority to establish

Fight for Old Law.

Meantime it is understood that the legal advisers of the gas monopoly are not willing to concede that their proceedings under the law of 1896 for inflation of their capitalization has died with the repeal of that act. They are prepared to maintain that this proceed-ing must go ahead, it is said, because when it was instituted the law was in On the other side, the legal authori-ties of the District have small concern pendency of this proceeding which will continue with the law repealed. The next move in the maiter of the reor-ganization of the capitalization of the gas monopoly will have to be made by gas monopoly will have to be made by the company, and, of course, it is not the company, and, of course, it is not making its plans public.

The magnificent scale of the rake-off attempted through the Senate committee bill attracted so much attention that friends of the District are on their guard and will make every effort to assure that no dangerous measure of this kind is passed. It is pretty generally conceded that the next long session will be marked by the passage of satisfacthe passage of satisfac-
